

Jews learn about Catholic Mass

The Rev. Warren Wall, associate pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Mobile, is shown placing consecrated bread known as the Blessed Sacrament in the tabernacle at the end of a Mass attended by participants in Mobile's Jewish-Christian Dialogue group. In explanation, Dr. Aidan Licari of the McGill-Toolen High School faculty told the congregation, "After the liturgical service if there is any bread remaining, that is reserved in the tabernacle, which is on the high altar behind a gold gate. Ordinarily we reserve the Blessed Sacrament in order to take it to the sick and the dying." (Mobile Press Register photo by Roy C. McAuley)
